source: TruSTAR Removable Storage Controller is prone to multiple cross-site scripting vulnerabilities because the application fails to properly sanitize user-supplied input. This issue occurs in the 'Read Me' page, which displays a warning message stating that the device is compatible with Windows XP and above. The application fails to properly sanitize the input that contains malicious script code, allowing for remote attackers to inject arbitrary web script or HTML via the device. Some user-supplied text is missing a '+' character preceding a script string, which when added to the request results in the injection of a script tag in the 'Computer Storage Device' content. In other cases, the application fails to escape script content, allowing remote attackers to inject arbitrary script or HTML to run on the client-side. An additional cross-site scripting issue exists in the 'Read Me' page when the 'Setup Instructions' and 'Hardware Support' links are followed. On some installations, the client-side script is modified to reference a different file on the same server, which allows for an attacker to steal cookie-based authentication tokens and impersonate the user. a historic move, the United Nations General Assembly has adopted a resolution that calls for a "transition to a global system for peaceful uses of nuclear energy" and that also supports a follow-up report in five years detailing how the global community can move forward. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 138-9 with 21 abstentions, after an hour of discussion. New Zealand, U.S., U.K. and France, which in recent months have introduced significant nuclear security measures, were among the countries that spoke in favor of the resolution. "Nuclear energy is a major contributor to the security and prosperity of modern societies, and the global community should support the urgent effort to ensure nuclear energy is controlled for the benefit of society and the planet," said Robert Lightfoot, ambassador for the U.S. North Korea, for example, has used nuclear weapons to invade the South and to assassinate political leaders like Kim Jong-Un's

Most of these tips aren't new, but the online version is something new and exciting. "Tax Tips" – Unpublished New Tips The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) began issuing its "Unpublished New Tax Tips" (UNT) on April 17, 2018. The tips concern a variety of topics and are published in installments on the IRS website on a regular basis until the information changes. A UNT is helpful if you have questions about a new law or potential tax change. It is not a substitute for advice from a tax professional or attorney. The IRS will be making tips available on the official IRS website and App Store, as well as on IRS.gov. If you are most interested in tips about changes that have already been enacted, use the "Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) News" section of IRS.gov. If you are most interested in tips about new laws, use the "New Law–New Tax Tip
